

We had the pleasure of being at Cycle City Bradford over the 11th and 12th of May, hosted at the illustrious National Science and Media Museum. The days were built of multiple events from workshops, tours, conferences and exhibition area. Many of the events were led by esteemed guests such as the Department of Transport hosted a workshop on 'Local Cycling and Walking Infrastructure Plans (LCWIPs)' and the Head of Traffic and Local Roads (Europe) from Aecom, discussed 'Walking and Cycling development; the next level'.

Over the 2 days there was good attendance to these events, where we were happy to have regular visitors eager to discuss the Orca Cycle Lane products and how they have been used on a number of schemes throughout the UK and how they could be incorporated on future and upcoming schemes.

These products were also on display along with the new and latest Cycle Lane brochure which features more technical and product information. Overall a good event with some key interest and we look forward to working with Cycle City in the future.
